For further information please contact Prof. Gerry FitzGerald - gj.fitzgerald@qut.edu.au - or Kym Adkinson at - ph_shortcourses@qut.edu.au.

- The AIDR website has a list of educational courses, further details can be found at - <https://aidr.org.au/programs/scholarships-for-volunteers/>.
- The following link relates to weekly reporting on the national flu scene in New Zealand - <https://www.esr.cri.nz/our-services/consultancy/flu-surveillance-and-research>.
- A free website for planning and response coordination for Primary health and Community pharmacies can be found - www.primaryhealthresponse.org.nz.
- The Torrens Resilience Institute (TRI), Flinders University, Adelaide, Australia and the Observatory on Security and CBRNe (OSDIFE), in cooperation with the University of Rome "Tor Vergata" – Department of Electronic Engineering and the state University of Republic of San Marino - Centre for Security Studies, presents a Masterclass on 'Chemical, Biological Radiological Investigation'. The TRI is a research institute, who aims to improve the capacity of organisations and society to respond to disruptive events. The institute works with a wide range of stakeholders, both within Australia and internationally including, the World Health Organisation, particularly in the area of deliberate chemical and biological events, academic institutions, Government and non-Government agencies, and is a member of the Global Resilience Network.

The OSDIFE, is an independent scientific site for the study, monitoring, analysis and dissemination of knowledge regarding CBRNe risk. It is the first Italian observatory dedicated to risk awareness, with particular attention to the CBRNe sector, and is affiliated with the University of San Marino and University of Rome, among other international entities. This unique Masterclass will focus on building awareness and skills related to the challenges of investigating a CBR incident and would be valuable for those agencies and individuals that may be called to work with law enforcement during a suspicious or confirmed event.

At this time, we are seeking your EXPRESSION OF INTEREST to attend. EOI's are kindly requested by 2 July 2018 via email to Dr Rebecca Hoile at - rebecca.hoile@flinders.edu.au - and tri@flinders.edu.au.

21st WADEM Congress on Disaster and Emergency Medicine
7 -10 May 2019 – Brisbane, Australia

2019 is an important year in Disaster Health practice for our region as we are hosting the conference. We encourage as many chapter members to attend and participate as possible. We would also encourage members to submit abstracts to the conference and hope to see research in Oceania well represented within the program.
